Aaron Wolk is a second-generation mason who spent his summers working with his father in Western PA. His formal training began in 1994 when he entered the masonry trades program at his local high school. Aaron followed the trade and attained his Journeyman papers in 2001 with the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craft Workers.

In 2003, Aaron left the field and began working as a manufacturer's representative. Over the next 12 years, he provided on-site consulting and hands-on training in 41 states throughout the US and across Canada. His finger prints can be found on projects ranging from the Palace of Fine Arts in San Francisco, CA to the Naval Cemetery in Annapolis, MD.

Leveraging 20+ years of practical experience in masonry construction and repair, Aaron is comfortable working with fellow masons on-site or providing specification guidance to design professionals.

In his free time, Aaron enjoys traveling to visit family and friends with his wife and home improvement projects around his house and property in Western PA. He also cherishes any time spent in his garage working on a 1968 Chevy truck they plan to take cross country someday and visit as many National Parks as possible.

We're very excited to have Aaron on our team and hope you can connect with him either in person or on Linkedin!
